

Changing Your Moodle Dashboard

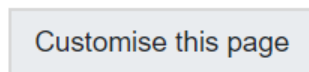

The course cards are a new feature of Moodle, but you may prefer the old listed layout for various reasons – for example, you are attached to a lot of courses. This “old” layout also allows you to hide courses if you are not currently using them.

Changing the Course Overview from Card Format to Listed Format

1. On your Dashboard, click on the ‘Customize this Page’ button:

3. Select the ‘Course Overview on Campus’ block from the popup menu.

4. You will now see your courses listed on the right hand side, but some adjustments need to be made to bring it to the middle. First, delete the current Course Overview block in the middle by clicking on the settings button for the block, and clicking 'Delete Course overview block'.

5. Next, click and drag on the crosshairs icon on the Course Overview on Campus block, dragging the block over to the middle of the page where the old Course Overview used to be.

6. Your Dashboard will now look like this, and you can click on the toggle buttons (to the right of course names) to hide courses as needed.

NOTE: if you would like to go back to the default format, you can do so by clicking on the 'Customize this page' button again, and then clicking on the 'Reset page to default' button.
