

The Quickmail Block in Moodle

Introduction

The Quickmail block is a way to send emails with attachments to users enrolled in a Moodle course. Instructors may send messages to individual students, groups of students, or all the students. Emails sent from the instructor to several participants will not show the other course participants' email addresses. It is similar to an email sent as a BCC (blind carbon copy) email. Depending on settings, students may also use this block.

Note:

- It is not recommended students send assignments through this block. Assignment activity in Moodle tracks students' involvement. The Assignment submission allows you to monitor student submissions with a quick glance.
- Consider continuing to use Moodle messaging for communication you do not need to use an editor (attach documents, etc.). Replies are sent to the original sender through Outlook. Replies are not tracked in Moodle.

A screenshot of the 'Configuration' page for the Quickmail block. The page has a title 'Configuration' and a 'Restore System Defaults' link. It contains several settings:

- 'Allow students to use Quickmail' with a 'Yes' dropdown.
- 'Roles to filter by' with a red error icon and a dropdown menu showing 'Teacher', 'Non-editing teacher', and 'Student'.
- 'Prepend Course name' with a 'Short name' dropdown.
- 'Receive a copy' with a 'Yes' dropdown.

 At the bottom, there is a red 'Save changes' button and a message: 'There are required fields in this form marked [red icon]'.

1. Allow students to use Quickmail: If set to "Yes", students can also use the Quickmail block to send emails to the users enrolled in the course.
2. Select what Roles to filter by.
3. Prepend Course name: choose the Short name, the course short name will be added to the Subject line of the email.
4. Receive a copy: If you choose "Yes", you will receive a copy of the email.
