

Withholding Marks

It may be important to withhold feedback and marks in your Moodle assessments. At times, you may want to start marking essays before the assignment is due, and you may not want students to share your feedback with students who have not submitted their work. At times, you may give a quiz with graded items that must be manually marked. You may also want to show the students the questions and feedback at the end once the quiz submission time frame has passed.

You are able to withhold feedback and marks for assignments and quizzes. The 2 different assessments work differently.

Withholding Marks for Assignments

You can withhold assignment marks and still have an active assignment on the course page by going to the gradebook setup page and hiding the assessment.

1. Select the gear at the top right of the course.
2. Select Gradebook setup.
3. For the assignment you would like to hide marks and feedback, select Edit > Hide.
4. Students will still be able to participate in the assignment on the course page. Remember to come back to the gradebook setup to unhide the assignment to release the students' marks.

Withholding Marks for Quizzes

You can withhold quiz marks and still have an active quiz on the course page by going to the quiz settings and adjust the Review Options.

1. Turn editing on.
2. Go to the quiz you want to withhold marks. Select Edit > Edit settings.
3. Go to the Review Options.
4. De-select Grade and all types of feedback.
5. Students will not see marks or feedback for this graded item. Remember to go back to Review Options to Release the marks for the students.
